LOCAL HOSTELRY CHANGES

Deal Consumated Last Saturday Whereby E. A. Lawrence Gives Place to H. D. Baker of Carthage, Missouri.

H. D. Baker and wife of Carthage, Missouri took charge of the St. Francois hotel last Sunday. The deal whereby E. A. Lawrence ceases to be landlord of the traveling public visiting Farmington was consummated Saturday. Mr. Baker is thus already on the job and with a smiling face greeting his many guests. The Lawrences left Wednesday for Sikeston, Mo. for a visit with a daughter there for a short time when they will go to St. Louis to a similar mission, as well as to the north part of the state later. The many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence and Miss Bethel, will regret to learn of their unexpected departure from our city; and Mr. Lawrence will be missed from the business circle of the town, as well as Mrs. Lawrence and Miss Bethel from the social life of the city. However, the Times can not but voice the wish of one and all that they may find a pleasant and happy location elsewhere; but it is to be doubted whether they will find a better place than Farmington.

Mr. Baker is not a stranger to the hotel business, and comes to our city with a successful past business career. The Times wishes to voice the sentiment of Farmington's hospitable people in extending a welcome to Mr. and Mrs. Baker to our fair city.
